on

THEORIZING GENDER AND VIOLENCE

SPEAKER

DR. AMIT ANAND

Assistant Professor, REVA University, Bangalore

Dr. Amit Anand is presently working as an Assistant Professor at School of Legal Studies, REVA University, Bengaluru. He has passed his PhD (Law) from Lancaster University, U.K. in 2022. He holds LL.M (Human Rights) from the University of Reading, U.K. (2015) and B.A.LL.B. (Honours.) from National Law School of India University, Bengaluru (2014). He has presented oral statements to separate United Nations Treaty Bodies in the past. The first statement was presented before the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the second statement was presented to the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women. Dr. Amit has several paper publications in both national and international peer reviewed journals. His research interests lie in the area of International Human Rights Law (particularly on the issue of gender-based violence, caste discrimination).

ABSTRACT

This lecture will briefly explore why gender is important for the study and understanding of violence and why gender-based violence matters. Further this lecture will explore different understanding of gender varied theoretical concepts which conceptualize violence as fundamentally gendered and related to how societies are structured. The different theoretical concepts will help in the understanding of how power and control (within the context of violence) are overwhelmingly associated with men and masculinities.
