ONLINE WORKSHOP

Organised by
Jindal Centre for Israel Studies, Jindal School of International Affairs

ABOUT

History and the image of the State of Israel is a controversial matter in India. Israel has been a political and ideological question for India's political class even before the establishment of the state in 1948. Israel has emerged as strong, stable and developed state with democratic system out of a deeply divided society. Its existential struggle since inception is yet not over and it has worked around many of the fundamental issues and achieved innovation and technological advancement that have given it the status of Start-Up Nation. By the end of this workshop, one will have broad yet comprehensive understanding of what is the idea of State of Israel. How should one approach Israel and its foreign policy, its security policy of deterrence rather than co-existence with the Palestinian people and what can one learn about politics, war and peace by understating Israel are some of the key questions explored in this workshop.
