JOURNALISM | FILM | CORPORATE COMMUNICATION

Our Story

At the Jindal School of Journalism and Communication (JSJC) we teach the art of storytelling: How to tell a story, how to grab people's attention, how to hold their attention.

In an increasingly digital, interdisciplinary, and global environment, JSJC is committed to providing a vibrant scholarly setting where students learn to question the status quo. They will acquire skills and knowledge that will enable them to excel in a career in journalism, film, or any field of communication and entrepreneurship.

Dean's Message

Without Fear or Favour

I am more convinced than ever that the world today needs a new vocabulary to communicate and tell stories that can help change lives. I am often asked why study journalism, communication or cinema? What is the future of these streams of studies? The future of our democracy rests on media and how they report/document the lived experiences of people and places. Jindal School of Journalism & Communication (JSJC) is committed to advancing this mission by recruiting and training the next generation of journalists, media professionals, and filmmakers to become compelling storytellers and industry leaders. Our graduates will become communication professionals equipped with critical thinking and skills rooted in a global, interdisciplinary perspective. JSJC is an environment of free and open learning where the students are encouraged to find an original voice to push the boundaries of the audio-visual medium in the best tradition of the liberal arts. After establishing a journalism programme comparable to the best in the world in 2017, we ventured into the exciting world of filmmaking and new media in

Kishalay Bhattacharjee

Professor and Dean,

Jindal School of Journalism & Communication

2021. In the bold vision laid out for the school, we then proceeded to curate an undergraduate programme in corporate communication and public affairs in 2022. These programmes provide a deep familiarity with audio, video, and film in all their various genres, with a special focus on emerging communication skills. They emphasise hands-on experience, serving as an interdisciplinary training ground for a new generation of communication artists who use moving images and sound as well as the written word to capture the world around them. The study of media helps us to make sense of the world around us. In a world where communication is constantly evolving we want students to find their own voice. JSJC programmes are amongst the few in India that look to equip students with the expertise to be full-fledged professionals at an undergraduate level and provide tools to let the students work on their individual creative expressions in a general university setting. As Dean, I am most proud of the excellent work being produced by our students and alumni under the guidance of our illustrious professors. The scope of our vision lies in diversity and truth-telling and it is worth your time and attention. You will be taught to question authority without fear or favour. The stakes are incredibly high. Please stand with us to help make this world a better place.

November 2023.

Ph.D. Programme @ JSJC

In a rapidly changing media landscape, Jindal School of Journalism & Communication focuses on training its students in a variety of skills across fields such as journalism, new media, film, and corporate communications. Each programme at JSJC rests on the foundations of scholarly engagement in the social sciences and training in practical skills required for the job market (particularly radio, television, print and digital media).

The Ph.D. programme is envisioned to provide a unique opportunity to early-career researchers, as well as working professionals with industry experience, who aspire to conduct rigorous and critical interdisciplinary enquiry on changing contours of media, communication, visual culture, film and cultural studies. The programme also offers an industry friendly approach to individuals who aim to engage with both theory and practice.

Open to postgraduates from allied disciplines, the programme offers full-time and part-time positions to prospective candidates. Incoming scholars will be mentored by professors from a wide variety of disciplines, including but not limited to history, economics, environment, media studies, visual studies, film studies and gender studies. The three-year programme is structured around coursework in the first year, with provisions for fieldwork in the second year with adequate time for writing the thesis thereafter.

Studios @ JSJC

As part of their training to be mass-media journalists and filmmakers, JSJC students receive extensive hands-on experience in radio, video/television, and film production skills, preparing them to be multi-skilled storytellers, who are as at home reporting on the ground as they are shooting or recording that reality electronically.

JSJC Internationalisation

LEGEND

Study Abroad

– Students may attend a semester abroad at any partner university. They will pay tuition fees to the partner university and bear their own living expenses. JGU tuition and residential fees will be waived for that semester

Short-Term Study Abroad Programme

– Students attend a specially curated programme at partner university for 2-3 weeks.

Semester Exchange

– Students may spend a semester at any partner university. They will bear their own living expenses. They are exempt from tuition fees from the partner university. However, they will pay tuition fees at JGU. JGU residential fees will be waived.

Dual Degree

– Students finish their degree at a partner university.

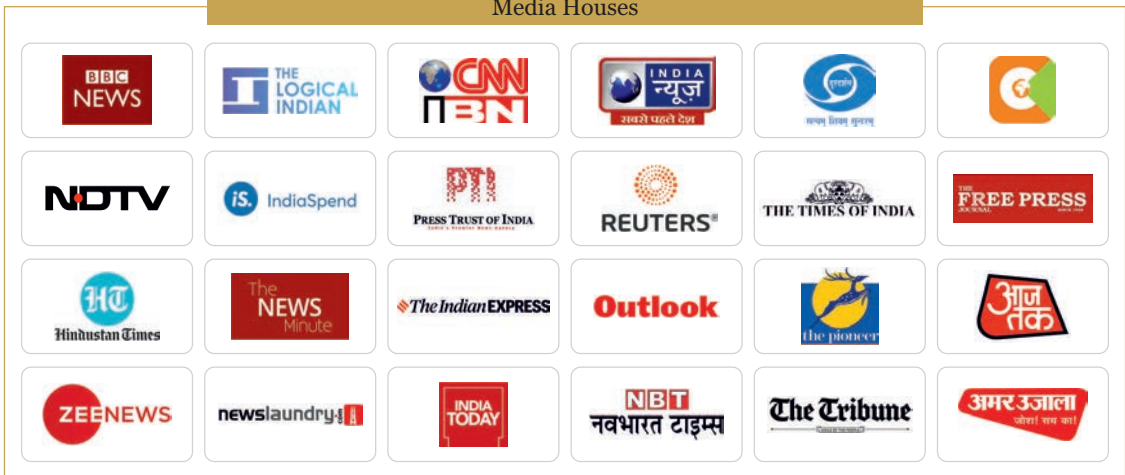

Internships

Internships are opportunities for JSJC students to explore media, communications, and the film industry, build networks, and create a portfolio of their work. Students are expected to do at least 4 internships of 3.5 credits each. They need a total of 14 non-academic, internship credits to graduate.

JSJC's faculty members and the internship committee, and the Office of Career Services helps students find internships during the summer and winter vacations. Our students have earlier completed internships at legacy organisations such as the BBC, newspapers such as The Times of India, The Hindustan Times, The Indian Express, and Business Standard, magazines such as Outlook and India Today, news channels such as NDTV, CNN IBN and Zee News, and new media organisation such as Newslaundry and The Wire. They have also explored opportunities in social sector organisation, production houses, and other communication firms.

Higher Studies

After graduating from JSJC, our students have pursued graduate studies from leading international institutions such as Columbia University, SOAS University of London, King's College London, London School of Economics and Political Science, Cardiff University and others.

JSJC Graduates

Ashima Sharma

Journalist covering the energy sector for Global Data, London. Valedictorian 2020

JSJC made sure I did not have to learn journalism from textbooks but by actually being on the ground. The diversity of subjects ranged from learning about business and economics to reporting on war and conflict. I often hear my peers in other colleges say that there is a deep chasm between what they have learnt in their course versus what employers expect when they start out on their first jobs. With JSJC, however, I was prepared to enter the industry.

Ashima Pargal

MA Candidate of Digital Direction. Royal College of Art, United Kingdom. Valedictorian 2021

The JMS programme at JSJC had a holistic approach. We had interactive classes in the social sciences, through which, we explored stories from multiple perspectives. Even during the pandemic, when everything was online, I was pushed to lead with empathy, to assume nothing, and put in the work to find stories around me. It taught me how to adapt, be kind, and resilient. After all, even in the darkest of times, there is always a story to tell.

Harleenn Agarwal

Multimedia Journalist, Formerly with Press Trust of India (PTI) Valedictorian 2022

When I joined JSJC in 2019, I was a shy kid, who had never lived away from home. I was intimidated by the high standards of college education. Yet, I enjoyed the shift from rote learning to courses that encouraged us to think and form informed opinions. Further, the small class size allowed me to have a deeper bond with my professors. My favourite part of any day was to unwind with friends on an evening stroll or have endless banter over a cup of tea from the many food joints.

Sumedha Maheshwari

M.A. candidate of Media and Communication. London School of Economics & Political Science. Valedictorian 2023

My time at the JSJC was everything I had wanted my college life to be. JGU and JSJC guided me to become a better student and a better person. The wealth of opportunities and information that was at my fingertips helped me get accepted into London School of Economics and Political Science. My school's Dean and professors have all my gratitude.

JSJC Graduates

Tushar Verma
Master of Communications candidate National University of Singapore

My time at JSJC was life-changing. It was here that I discovered the joy of reading and studying for the first time. I think I am most thankful for faculty members who were genuinely interested in their students' successes, and always approachable. Today, while pursuing my master's, I look back at those three years with contentment.

Satvika Mahajan
*Correspondent for
The Hindu, New Delhi*

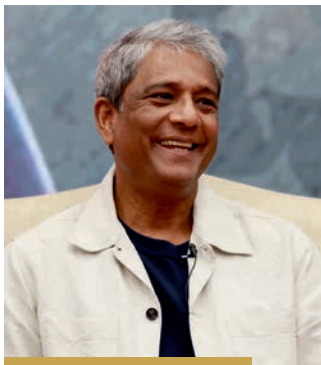

JSJC taught me the basic tenets of journalism —it provoked thought and the ability to question. The course helped me prepare for a career in journalism by training me to go beyond my comfort zones and make interdisciplinary connections, which are necessary for any reporter.

Pragma Roy Barman
*Millennium Post, City Reporter
New Delhi*

JSJC helped me unlearn and relearn how I view the world. It showed me the importance of storytelling and how it shapes narratives for generations. I am truly grateful for the time I spent here.

I very much enjoyed my time teaching at Jindal School of Journalism & Communication. The course I taught – an elective class on Investigative Journalism – brought in a mix of students from different disciplines: law, international relations and so on. This enriched our conversations and challenged me to frame the course in a way that would carry a more universal resonance, on the need to hold power to account, and on the importance of factual rigour. At a time when India's media landscape is under strain, it was good to discover that so many young people are keen to engage with and learn about journalistic practises.

JSJC Radio

Radio JSJC is a platform for members of the JGU community to interact and discuss important issues. It is also a space where students can perform radio plays and host podcasts. It gives JSJC Students a chance to manage a live media production and broadcast process.

Visit: <https://soundcloud.com/radio-jsjc>

JSJC TV

JSJC also runs a YouTube channel, JSJC TV, which hosts student productions as well as recordings of important guest lectures and events organised by the school. JSJC TV showcases the best work by students each year. The school also livestreams important events directly on this dedicated channel.
